This year, as in previous years, Aboriginal students from Years 1 to 7 have been given the opportunity to attend Homework Centre, after school hours. Teachers volunteer to come along and help the students with their homework and this gives each student a little one on one time with a teacher.

Every session begins with a little afternoon snack then it is down to business. The teachers listen to each child read, then assist them with their homework tasks which have been set by the classroom teachers.

At the completion of the session, the students are driven home on the school bus by Mr Jacko and accompanied by one of the volunteer teachers. A big thank you to Lizzy Walker, Mr Jacko and all the teachers who have helped throughout the year.
